DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
2. Claims 1 and 3-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over applicants' acknowledged state of the art or Nels in view of Winkler. Applicant's arguments have been considered but are not deemed persuasive. The prior art discloses all of the claimed structural features of the instantly claimed product except for the claimed thickness of the friction layer, which the examiner has argued is obvious over the prior art and applicant has not directed any specific arguments to this claimed thickness. Therefore, applicant is relying only on a claimed property for patentability, namely the property that the friction layer changes in thickness a specific amount under a specific pressure. The examiner has provided a basis in fact and /or technical reasoning to reasonably support the determination that the allegedly inherent characteristics necessarily flow from the teachings in the Winkler, namely that the friction layer in Winkler is made from the same materials as the instantly claimed product and has been compacted like the instantly claimed product. In response, applicant argues that the process used to form the product in Winkler is different than that used by applicant because "only the surface is compacted" in the Winkler product and that the Winkler product cannot be compacted because there is no impregnation with resin to hold the product in a compressed state. However the fabric layer in Winkler is penetrated by a coating of resin adhesive layer and cured under pressure, therefore the adhesive can be expected to hold the fabric in a compressed state to a degree. Applicant further argues that the CVD process used in Winkler is extremely complex and expensive and cannot be employed economically to form the claimed synchronizer ring. This is not convincing of patentability since a proper determination of patentability is a comparison of the prior art product and instantly claimed final product, not what processes are used to form these products.

Conclusion

3. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
